Footnoted by Nick Franklin

Footnoted extracts from Books I, III and IV of Paradise Lost by John Milton for the First Year of the Degree in English Studies at the Universidad Nacional de Educación a Distancia, Spain.

John Milton

Paradise Lost, Book I, versos 1-194:

BOOK 1

THE ARGUMENT

This first Book proposes, first in brief, the whole Subject, Man's disobedience, and the loss thereupon of Paradise wherein<sup>1</sup> he was placed: Then touches the prime cause of his fall, the Serpent, or rather Satan in the Serpent; who revolting from<sup>2</sup> God, and drawing to his side many Legions of Angels, was by the command of God driven out of Heaven with all his Crew into the great Deep. Which action past over, the Poems hastes into the midst of things<sup>3</sup>, presenting Satan with his Angels now fallen into Hell, described here, not in the Centre (for Heaven and Earth may be supposed as yet not made, certainly not yet accursed) but in a place of utter darkness, fitted<sup>4</sup> called Chaos: Here Satan with his Angels lying on the burning Lake, thunder-struck and astonished, after a certain space recovers, as from confusion, calls up him who next in Order and Dignity lay by him; they confer of their miserable fall. Satan awakens all his Legions, who lay till then in the same manner confounded; They rise their Numbers, array of Battle, their chief Leader's named, according to the Idols known afterwards in Canaan and the Countries adjoining. To these Satan directs his Speech, comforts them with hope yet of regaining Heaven, but tells them lastly of a new World and new kind of Creature to be created, according to an ancient Prophecy or report in Heaven; for that Angels were long before this visible Creation, was the opinion of many ancient Fathers. To find out the truth of this Prophecy, and what to determine thereon he refers to a full Counsel. What his Associates thence attempt. Pandemonium<sup>5</sup> the Palace of Satan rises, suddenly built out of the Deep: The infernal Peers there sit in Counsel.

<sup>3</sup> Milton announces that he intends to follow classical precedents by beginning his epic in medias res, in the middle of things, and only later coming back, by reported action, to the action 'past over' here. The story of the rebel angels being "driven out of Heaven...into the great Deep", for example, comes in Book 6.

<sup>7</sup> The poem opens by echoing what had already become a formulaic epic opening. See Homer's Iliad and Odyssey, Virgil's Aeneid, and Tasso's Jerusalem Delivered.

<sup>8</sup> that – that well-known (Latin ille)

<sup>9</sup> that forbidden tree – the tree of knowledge (Genesis, 2, 17)

<sup>10</sup> mortal – deadly

<sup>12</sup> This line echoes fairly closely Virgil's narrative voice in Aeneid book 4, announcing that death and woe followed the ersatz nuptials of Aeneas and Dido

<sup>13</sup> The Messiah, or the 'second Adam', Jesus. See Romans 5:19: "For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous." More than one editor suggests that the poem has two epic heroes and two epic deeds: Man's disobedience by which immortality and Paradise are lost, and the Messiah's obedience by which Mankind is restored and Paradise regained. The opening lines of Paradise Regain'd echo these lines. On the other hand, the 'Argument', above does not speak of two heroes and two deeds. The classical formula favors disobedience as the heroic subject, but the allusion to Romans looks ahead to the "higher Argument" that 'Remains' (book 9.42-43) for Paradise Regain'd.

<sup>14</sup> restore – (is future tense) will redeem, may restore

<sup>16</sup> to regain – recover, win back

<sup>19</sup> heavenly Muse – it was customary in classical epic to invoke the aid of a Muse, one of the nine responsible for the arts and science. Milton invokes a heavenly Muse called Urania, "the Heavenly One", in VII, 1-7. Not to be confused with the classical Muse of astronomy of the same name.

<sup>21</sup> Milton refers to biblical mountains in preference to Olympus, Helicon, or Parnassus; Horeb, where Moses ('That Shepherd') saw the burning bush (Exodus 3) and received the Law (Deuteronomy 4: 10), and Sinai, where God gave him the Ten Commandments (Exodus 19, 20)

<sup>22</sup> didst – (archaic) (thou) did (second person singular)

<sup>24</sup> the chosen seed – the Children of Israel

<sup>25</sup> to rise out of (rise-rose-risen) – emerge from

<sup>28</sup> Siloa's brook – Milton once more parallels classical epic. Instead of the spring Aganippe which rises by the altar of Zeus and was the home of the Muses, he refers to Siloa, a spring and a pool close to Mount Zion

<sup>30</sup> oracle of God – the Temple on Mount Moriah, outside Jerusalem. Siloa was in the valley nearby

<sup>31</sup> thence – as a consequence, therefore

<sup>33</sup> no middle flight – Milton intends his poem to have both sublimity of subject and grandeur of style. Mediaeval rhetoricians recognised three levels of style, of which Milton rejects the middle (medians) in favour of the highest (sublimis)

<sup>35</sup> Aonian mount – Helicon in Greece, sacred to and home of the classical poetic Muses

<sup>36</sup> pursues – deals with

<sup>37</sup> rhyme – verse

<sup>39</sup> Spirit – the Holy Spirit, third aspect of the Trinity. Milton considers the Holy Spirit similar, though superior, to his heavenly Muse

<sup>40</sup> dost – (archaic) (thou) do (second person singular)

<sup>41</sup> upright – virtuous

<sup>42</sup> (thou) knowest – (archaic) (you) know

<sup>43</sup> wast /wost/ – (archaic) was

<sup>46</sup> Dove-like – in Luke 3, 22 the Holy Spirit descends upon Jesus “in bodily form, as a dove (= paloma blanca)”.

Milton imagines it here participating in the Creation

<sup>47</sup> (thou) satst – (you) sat (second person singular)

<sup>48</sup> to brood – empollar; encobar

<sup>51</sup> dark – ‘ignorant’ though some critics see this as a reference to Milton’s blindness (Cf. Prologue of Book III)

<sup>52</sup> illumine – (archaic) illuminate

<sup>53</sup> low – base, undignified

<sup>54</sup> to raise – elevate, dignify

<sup>55</sup> highth – height, sublimity

<sup>56</sup> argument – subject, theme

<sup>58</sup> justify – (in this case) demonstrate that sth. is just, explain the justice of

<sup>59</sup> Milton is addressing his heavenly muse

<sup>60</sup> tract – area, expanse

<sup>61</sup> grand parents – original ancestors, Adam and Eve

<sup>62</sup> favoured of – a. honoured by; b. resembling

<sup>63</sup> to fall off from – desert

<sup>64</sup> will (n.) – wishes, decree, decision

<sup>65</sup> for one restraint – on account of the single prohibition not to eat the fruit of the tree of knowledge

<sup>66</sup> besides – in everything else (i.e. apart from which they commanded the world)

<sup>67</sup> foul – disgraceful

<sup>68</sup> guile – duplicity, cunning

<sup>75</sup> peers – equals

<sup>76</sup> trusted – confidently anticipated

<sup>77</sup> the most High – (Hebrew epithet for) God, Elohim

<sup>78</sup> to raise – (in this case) wage, make

<sup>79</sup> vain effort – a. futile effort; b. effort prompted by vanity

<sup>80</sup> ethereal sky – heaven

<sup>81</sup> hideous – horrendous, horrible

<sup>83</sup> combustion – destruction by fire. Luke 10.18: “I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven”

<sup>84</sup> to dwell – live, exist

<sup>85</sup> adamant chains – shackles made of diamond (or a similarly unbreakable material)

<sup>86</sup> penal – giving pain as a punishment

<sup>88</sup> to defy – challenge, confront

<sup>89</sup> In Hesiod's Theogony 664-735, the Titans take a similar fall at the hands of Zeus. Interestingly, though Milton alludes to the fall of the Titans here, he likens their nine-day fall, not to the fall of the rebel angels, but to the time they spent lying vanquished on the fiery gulf after their fall. Raphael, in book 6, line 871, however, tells Adam that the rebel angels fell for ‘Nine dayes’.

<sup>90</sup> = for nine days he and his evil followers were lying helpless in the fires of Hell

<sup>91</sup> rowling in the fiery gulf – roasting in the burning lake of hell. This is a translation from the Aeneid 6.581, “writhing in the lowest abyss”.

<sup>93</sup> reserved him to more wrath – preserved him for more punishment (the wrath of God)

<sup>94</sup> pain – the rebel angels had not known pain before their fall

<sup>95</sup> round – (in this case) around, all about

<sup>103</sup> dismal – depressing

<sup>104</sup> situation – locality

<sup>105</sup> dungeon – underground prison

<sup>106</sup> to discover – reveal, make visible

<sup>107</sup> sorrow – sadness, suffering

<sup>108</sup> doleful – sad, depressing

<sup>110</sup> this phrase alludes to Dante ("All hope abandon, ye who enter here")

<sup>111</sup> still urges – always afflicts (from Latin urgere)

<sup>112</sup> fiery Deluge – raining down fire and flowing lava

<sup>113</sup> sulphur – brimstone (see Revelation, 19, 20; 20, 10)

<sup>114</sup> utter – (in this case) outer (not 'complete')

<sup>115</sup> far removed – distant

<sup>116</sup> thrice – three times, x3

<sup>118</sup> the distance between hell and heaven is three times the distance from the centre of the universe (earth) to the point at its outer extremity nearest to the empyrean

<sup>119</sup> whence – (archaic) where

<sup>120</sup> o'erwhelm'd – overwhelmed

<sup>121</sup> whirlwind – tornado

<sup>124</sup> Baal-zebub – 'lord of the flies' – a local manifestation of the pagan god Baal worshipped as a sun-god by the Philistines

<sup>125</sup> thence – for that reason (because the Hebrew word Satan means 'the adversary', 'the enemy')

<sup>126</sup> originally he was called Lucifer, 'the bringer of light'

<sup>127</sup> bold – brave, valiant, courageous

<sup>129</sup> in the original this is given as beest (a subjunctive alternative to 'art')

<sup>130</sup> realm – kingdom, dominion

<sup>131</sup> to outshine – shine brighter than, eclipse

<sup>132</sup> myriads – countless numbers

<sup>133</sup> If he – (in this case) If thou be he

<sup>134</sup> hazard – risk, chance, fortune

<sup>135</sup> now – (in this case) whom now

<sup>136</sup> misery – (false friend) suffering, unhappiness

<sup>137</sup> hath – (archaic) has

<sup>138</sup> pit – hole, chasm

<sup>139</sup> thou seest – (archaic) you see

<sup>140</sup> dire – dreadful, terrible

<sup>141</sup> for – because of

<sup>142</sup> fixed – (in this case) steadfast, resolved

<sup>144</sup> injured merit – Satan's revolt was inspired by the envy of the Son

<sup>145</sup> durst – dared to

<sup>147</sup> dubious – of uncertain result. The battle lasted for three days

<sup>148</sup> field – battle

<sup>149</sup> study – (in this case) planning, pursuit (from Latin studium)

<sup>152</sup> that glory – the glory to God of forcing Satan to submit

<sup>153</sup> wrath – anger, fury

<sup>154</sup> to sue for – ask for

<sup>155</sup> to deify – worship as god-like

<sup>156</sup> doubted – feared for. This is not true; the issue of the war in heaven was never in doubt. But Satan is the father of lies, and even his most ringing rhetoric lacks truth of substance.

<sup>157</sup> empire – power to rule

<sup>159</sup> since – (in this case) given that (ya que)

THE ARGUMENT

Satan now in prospect of Eden, and nigh the place where he must now attempt the bold<sup>127</sup> enterprise which he undertook alone against God and Man, falls into many doubts with himself, and many passions, fear, envy, and despair; but at length confirms himself in evil, journeys on to Paradise, whose outward prospect and situation is described, overleaps the bounds, sits in the shape of a cormorant on the Tree of life, as highest in the Garden to look about him. The Garden described; Satan's first sight of Adam and Eve; his wonder at their excellent form and happy state, but with resolution to work their fall; overhears their discourse, thence gathers that the Tree of knowledge was forbidden them to eat of, under penalty of death; and thereon intends to found his Temptation, by seducing them to transgress: then leaves them a while, to know further of their state by some other means. Meanwhile Uriel descending on a Sun-beam warns Gabriel, who had in charge the Gate of Paradise, that some evil spirit had escaped the Deep, and past at Noon by his Sphere in the shape of a good Angel down to Paradise, discovered after by his furious gestures in the Mount. Gabriel promises to find him ere<sup>235</sup> morning. Night coming on, Adam and Eve discourse of going to their rest: their Bower described; their Evening worship. Gabriel drawing forth his Bands of Night-watch to walk the round of Paradise, appoints two strong Angels to Adams Bower, least the evil spirit should be there doing some harm to Adam or Eve sleeping; there they find him at the ear of Eve, tempting her in a dream, and bring him, though unwilling, to Gabriel; by whom questioned, he scornfully answers, prepares resistance, but hindered by a Sign from Heaven, flies out of Paradise.

<sup>376</sup> in gaze – still and silent

<sup>377</sup> failed – that had previously failed him

<sup>378</sup> mine – my (used in EME before a vowel)

<sup>379</sup> the space left by the expulsion of the fallen angels

<sup>380</sup> bliss – happiness, paradise

<sup>381</sup> other mould – another substance

<sup>382</sup> = but only slightly inferior to bright celestial spirits

<sup>383</sup> wonder – amazement, astonishment

<sup>384</sup> gentle – (in this case) noble

<sup>385</sup> nigh – (archaic) near, soon

<sup>386</sup> for so happy ill-secured – less safe than happy

<sup>387</sup> ill-fenced – badly protected

<sup>388</sup> for heaven – as a heaven

<sup>389</sup> no pursued foe – I have no intention of being your enemy

<sup>390</sup> forlorn – lost, defenceless

<sup>391</sup> league – an association for mutual protection

<sup>392</sup> amity – friendship, fellowship

<sup>393</sup> strait – strict

<sup>394</sup> to dwell – stay, live, abide

<sup>396</sup> i.e. accept that God made Hell as well as Paradise. The following lines are reminiscent of Tamburlaine

<sup>397</sup> these narrow limits – the moral and physical boundaries of paradise

Your num/'rous off/spring; if / no bet/ter place, [385]
Thank him / who puts / me loath<sup>398</sup> / to this / revenge
 On you / who wrong / me not / for<sup>399</sup> him / who wrong'd. polyptoton
 And should / I at / your harm/less in/nocence

Honour / and Em/pire with / revenge / enlarg'd, [390]
 By con/qu'ring this / new World, / compels / me now
 To do / what else<sup>401</sup> / though damn'd / I should / abhor.

 So spoke / the Fiend<sup>402</sup>, / and with / neces/sity,
 The Ty/rant's plea, / excus'd / his de/v'lish deeds<sup>403</sup>.

<sup>398</sup> loath – reluctant, unwilling

<sup>400</sup> public reason – reasons of state (which justify private injury). Satan is speaking like a politician and perverting the Ciceronian principle that the good of the people is the supreme law

<sup>401</sup> else – otherwise, in other circumstances

<sup>402</sup> fiend – devil, demon

<sup>403</sup> deeds – acts

Adam and Eve (ll. 395-538)

<sup>404</sup> kind – (in this case) species

<sup>405</sup> i.e. Satan adopts one disguise after another

<sup>406</sup> shape – parody of incarnation

<sup>407</sup> prey – quarry, victim(s)

<sup>408</sup> purlieu – (literally) land on the periphery of a forest

<sup>409</sup> fawn – baby deer (e.g. Bambi)

<sup>410</sup> straight – straightaway, immediately

<sup>411</sup> couches close – hugs the ground ready to pounce

<sup>412</sup> couchant – lying down

<sup>413</sup> whence – from where

<sup>414</sup> to seize – catch, grab, capture

<sup>416</sup> spondee according to Prof. Lois Potter in the Cambridge University Press version

<sup>417</sup> aught – anything

<sup>418</sup> whereof he hath need – he needs

<sup>419</sup> varied rhythm (trochee + trochee + iamb + trochee + iamb) according to Prof. Lois Potter in the Cambridge University Press version

<sup>420</sup> whate'er – whatever

<sup>421</sup> Adam has not yet witnessed death

<sup>422</sup> thou knowst – (archaic) you know

<sup>423</sup> possess – inhabit

<sup>424</sup> bounty – abundance

<sup>425</sup> were it toilsome – even if it were onerous (= hard work)

<sup>426</sup> notice how emphatically monosyllabic Eve is

<sup>427</sup> am to no end – I have no purpose

<sup>428</sup> a reference to 1 Corinthians 11:3: 'the head of the woman is the man' (misogynist twaddle)

<sup>429</sup> odds – the amount by which one thing exceeds or excels another, extra, difference. She has a superior husband; he can't find an equal wife

<sup>430</sup> thou canst – you (singular) can

<sup>431</sup> oft – (archaic) often

<sup>432</sup> whence – (archaic) when

<sup>433</sup> thither – (archaic) to that place

<sup>434</sup> from thence – from that place

<sup>435</sup> to issue – (in this case) come, be emitted

<sup>436</sup> to spread (spread-spread-spread) – extend, proliferate, expand

<sup>438</sup> to start back – jump back, recoil in surprise (think: 'startled')

<sup>439</sup> to pine – want, yearn for

<sup>440</sup> stays – awaits

<sup>441</sup> (thou) art – (archaic singular) you are

<sup>442</sup> thine – yours (archaic singular)

<sup>443</sup> thence – (in this case) after that

<sup>444</sup> straight – straightaway, immediately

<sup>445</sup> Eve is talking to Adam

<sup>446</sup> Platan – plane tree (from the Latin platanus)

<sup>447</sup> fair – (in this case) beautiful

<sup>448</sup> whom flyest thou? – who are you running away from?

<sup>449</sup> individual – inseparable, undividable

<sup>451</sup> our general mother – the mother of us all, the primordial mother of all people

<sup>452</sup> unreproved – innocent, unreprovable

<sup>454</sup> Adam finds beauty combined with submission more attractive than beauty alone (well, he would, wouldn't he?!)

<sup>455</sup> impregns – impregnates

<sup>456</sup> matron (adj.) – married

<sup>457</sup> askance – suspiciously, disapprovingly

<sup>459</sup> imparadised – placed in the paradise of each other's embrace, which is happier than Eden itself

<sup>460</sup> desire is distinguished from love

<sup>461</sup> pines – tortures

<sup>463</sup> the sin, in fact, is not in the knowledge but in the disobedience

<sup>464</sup> sarcastic stress (according to Prof. Lois Potter in the Cambridge University Press version)

<sup>465</sup> Satan ascribes his own feelings of envy to God, claiming that God denies Adam and Eve knowledge of good and evil because He envies them.

<sup>466</sup> to ensue – happen as a consequence

<sup>472</sup> livery – distinctive clothes

<sup>474</sup> accompanied – in the sense that a piano accompanies a solo instrument

<sup>475</sup> descant – variations on the melody

<sup>476</sup> Hesperus – the evening star, the first to appear

<sup>477</sup> apparent – made apparent, reveal, manifest, clearly

<sup>478</sup> thus – (in this case) said the following

<sup>479</sup> mind – remind

<sup>480</sup> slumberous – somniferous

<sup>481</sup> inclines – weighs down

<sup>483</sup> Milton as a Puritan strongly believed in the superiority of the active life over the contemplative life

<sup>486</sup> at – (in this case) doing

<sup>487</sup> yon – those... over there

<sup>488</sup> scant manuring – ineffectual cultivation, minimal manual work

More hands / than ours / to lop / their wan/ton growth.<sup>489</sup>

<sup>489</sup> Milton reckons that for Paradise to be truly perfect, there must be work available for Adam's children, since work is one of life's great pleasures, and a distinctly human dignity.

<sup>490</sup> ask riddance – must be eliminated

<sup>491</sup> to will – desire, demand

<sup>492</sup> author – originator. She has sprung from his side

<sup>493</sup> disposer – controller

<sup>494</sup> bidst – ask for

<sup>497</sup> charm – birdsong. Probably a conscious play upon double derivation: Latin carmen (= a song) and Anglo-Saxon cyrn (= noise)

<sup>498</sup> orient – eastern (as he rises in the morning)

<sup>499</sup> to glister – glisten

<sup>500</sup> solemn bird – nightingale

<sup>502</sup> Sweet is... is sweet – ll. 641-56 is the most striking example in Paradise Lost of epanalepsis (i.e. repetition).

<sup>503</sup> this is the first request for knowledge
